

BABY INCUBATOR BACKER IS DEAD ON BRIDAL NIGHT

Relatives Call on Coroner and Police to Make an Investigation.

Dr. Sol Fischel, who introduced in America the "baby incubator" and made it a feature of numerous expositions and fairs, will be buried in Pleasant Point Cemetery tomorrow, the day he had originally fixed for his wedding. He was married Saturday afternoon to Miss Anna Winter, No. 43 Manhattan avenue, Greenpoint, in a synagogue on East Seventh street, having changed his arrangements at the last hour. None of his relatives was present at the marriage. They were first apprised of it by a telephone message from the bride, informing them that the doctor had died suddenly within a few hours of his wedding. Charles Murray, President of the Atlantic Express Company and a business associate of former Comptroller Herman A. Metz, was a close friend of Dr. Fischel. Saturday afternoon he received a telephone message from the doctor. "I'm going to be married to-day," he announced. "Come down to the Hudson Terminal Building and I'll tell you all about it." Surprised by the announcement of the doctor, who was forty-three and a bachelor, Mr. Murray insisted that Dr.

Fischel come to his office instead, while he informed Mrs. Murray. WAS A DELAY IN GETTING THE LICENSE. Dr. Fischel did come in a few moments later, but only to explain that he and his bride-to-be were going to get the license. He left a few moments later, but soon returned, appearing disconsolate. "We were too late to get the license," he said. "I'll get my car and my wife and I will take you to Connecticut and see you married there." Murray suggested that the doctor agree to this and departed. The doctor agreed to this and a few moments later to announce that the license difficulty had been arranged and that the marriage would take place at 8 o'clock that night.

At the hour named Mr. and Mrs. Murray entered the synagogue. They were surprised to find that they were the only wedding guests. Dr. Fischel's niece and her husband, Hans Kronold, the doctor's only near relatives, not being present.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS HOTEL. Dr. Fischel introduced his bride to the Murphys as Miss Anna Winter of No. 43 Manhattan avenue, Greenpoint. The marriage ceremony was then performed by a rabbi, and the bride party adjourned to the Hotel Bristol. After an informal wedding supper the Murphys took their departure. About 1 o'clock yesterday morning the Murphys' telephone rang. "Is that Mrs. Murray? This is Mrs. Fischel. Come as quick as you can. Sol is dead," was the message that Mrs. Murray, who answered it, heard. Her husband called a taxi and rushed to the Bristol.

He found Dr. Fischel unconscious, with Dr. Maurice Berger of No. 227 East Tenth street working over him. Dr. Fischel lingered until nearly 5 in the morning and died without having regained consciousness. CAN FIND NO TRACE OF HIS BRIDE. Mr. Murray's first act was to notify the Kronolds, who came to the hotel.

Mr. Kronold, after hearing the story, decided to have an investigation, and called in the police and the coroner. The body was taken to undertakers at No. 241 West Twenty-third street, where Dr. Edgar Ray, Coroner's Physician, performed an autopsy and found death was due to valvular disease of the heart, from which Mr. Murray was able to testify. Dr. Fischel had been a sufferer for several months. Inquiry at the Greenpoint address disclosed the fact that Frederick Winter and his daughter Anna resided there. Neither was at home last night. Besides Mrs. Kronold Dr. Fischel's only relative was a nephew, Dr. Max Fischel, a dentist in Paragary, South America, who is at present visiting in New York.

PRIEST PLEADS GUILTY.

"Guilty," said Father Hans Schmidt, the priest who killed Anna Ammerler, when brought before Judge Malone to-day, before his attorney, Alphonse Koenig, had had time to say a word.
